

INSTRUCTIONS FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE - CREDITS REQUIRED

Australia/Frederic Courbet for Panos Pictures/GoTerra Organic Food Waste Management

Please credit partners and teams:

ClimateWorks Australia

Please credit featured organisations and teams:

GoTerra

Caption format:

Image Caption/Frederic Courbet for Panos Pictures/Food and Land Use Coalition

Extra Context:

[Dynamic and purposeful, Goterra offers complete food waste management including clean organics from processing, kitchen waste and other pre-consumer waste streams, all the way to post consumer restaurant and household food wastes.

Unlike other food waste technology, Goterra manages waste using insects. Hence, the process not only manage waste, it creates high protein insect meal and valuable, nutritious soil conditioner.]

Files:

GoTerra000;003;005:

Litara Higgle, staff member of GoTerra, working at their facilities in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra008;015;018;019;028;029;031;043;044;075;103;104;105;123:

Black soldier fly (Hermetia Illucens) aviary and maggots at GoTerra facilities in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra022:

Food waste collected from supermarkets brought to GoTerra facilities in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra034:

Automatised maggot management system at GoTerra facilities in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra039:

INSTRUCTIONS FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE - CREDITS REQUIRED

Jesse Willems, staff member of GoTerra, installs net for black soldiers fly at their facilities in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra050;117:

Olympia Yarger, CEO of GoTerra, an organic waste management facility in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra059;094;095:

Food waste collected from supermarkets brought to GoTerra facilities in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra078;063:

Jesse Willems and Olympia Yarger at GoTerra facilitates in Canberra, Australia.

GoTerra084;090;097;GoTerra099:

Olympia Yarger and Chris Stevenson observe foddering waste collected from supermarkets brought to GoTerra facilities in Canberra, Australia.
